Up in St. Paul, Minn., factory employees earned yearly on the average $431.

In 1880. This was fully twice the wages of European workers, but their earnings nevertheless grew to $565.

A year in 1880. This, together with the increase in the number of the hands who found employment, brought the total sum, distributed in wages, up from $3,554,340 in 1880 to $9,731,588 in 1880.

England's crack locomotive, with its reported speed of ninety miles an hour, which is to be exhibited at Chicago, may be a wonderful production of human skill in its way; but it will not astonish Americans. Looking at it, they will recall the fact that their own locomotives have practically driven the English engines out of the South American and Australian markets.

If the United States Government is good enough for the people of this country it is good enough for Hawaii. The Hawaiians are anxious to be permitted to enjoy its benefits. Does Mr. Cleveland think that the Tariff is an American President to insist the fair representations of America by threatening Hawaii back under her native tyrants or handing her over to England?

How does Mr. Cleveland reconcile his declaration that "every American citizen must contemplate with the utmost pride and enthusiasm the growth and expansion of our country," and "the wonderful thrift and enterprise of our people," with the statement of the Chicago platform, that "we deny that there has been any increase of prosperity to the country since the Tariff went into operation, and we point to the following and distinct etc." His last inaugural is a confirmation that as far as the Tariff is concerned his election last fall was due to false pretenses.

Your Uncle Sam is very particular about your mail matter. A short time ago a consignment of gold was received at the Treasury Department from San Francisco. The gold came in heavy canvas bags, and, in the aggregate of $290,000 in gold, it was found that it was 9 cents light in weight. The Cashier of the Treasury had to make good the deficiency of 9 cents, but the bags themselves were sent to the assay office at Philadelphia, and at the expense of probably 100 times the amount of light weight the bags were buried, the gold was recovered from the bags by a smelting process and returned to the Cashier, who in the end lost nothing.

Concurrently with the great demand for rubber created by the development of electrical invention, which call for large quantities of this material, instances have appeared undoubted signs of failure in the sources of rubber supply. It takes many years for newly planted rubber trees to attain maturity, and this mode of furnishing the supply seemed rather hopeless. But Yankee ingenuity was equal to the occasion. A method of making rubber from crude cottonseed oil has been invented, and a factory down in Savannah is successfully manufacturing it. The process is secret, but it is said that oil worth $135 a ton is delivered at the factory and comes out in the form of rubber worth $3,000 a ton.

The Courier-Journal, in justice to the Postmaster General under President Harrison's Administration, says that Mr. Wanamaker has aimed to improve the postal service, and his suggestions have been practical and must result beneficially.

Mr. Wanamaker will be longest remembered as the Postmaster General who first considered the wisdom of extending free delivery of the mail to the rural districts.

He has done more than consider this subject; he has made a number of experiments which show that the proposition is entirely practical, and he has urged the steady extension of this service until every hamlet shall be served by the uniformed letter-carrier.

The expense of the extension cannot be well estimated. The influence of such a system on rural life would be marked in many ways. It would bring the farmers into more direct connection with each other, as well as with our great commercial centers. Mr. Wanamaker's experiments show that the system would be self-sustaining, and all that is needed for its complete success is time and executive capacity.

Postmaster General Bisell can render no greater service to the people than to make free delivery of the mail to rural districts an actuality instead of a mere experiment, and thus share with Mr. Wanamaker the credit for perhaps the greatest postal reform of a generation.

Let us have free delivery for the farmer.

The New York World is not so sweet on Mr. Cleveland now as it has been for some time past. It is not so sweet on the Republicans either, and it should hold office in preference to Republicans and that "it is impossible to suppose that he and Secretary Lamont are the only citizens of this country who ought to have second thoughts."

A FEW weeks ago the people of Millersburg voted on the question of local option and the vote was in favor of prohibition. Crimes enough have been charged against Jack to supply an ordinary惩罚 for three or four hundred years.

TO OBTAIN the sense of the people as to their desire to receive the endorsement of the new Constitution and in response to the demands of the secessionists to have a new state, the members of the Legislature have agreed to let the assets of Building Associations in this state, which is in reality neither more nor less than the Association of the city of Louisville, be sold to the public at a low price.

Suppose a member of our city's Association borrows $4,000, and the mortgage is recorded for that amount. Now suppose the member has interest in $5,000, for $5,000, for which no credit is given on the mortgage, but the mortgage is listed for taxation at its full face value of $5,000. The $4,000 is paid off in the bonds to the association, and it is now the association that stands to lose $1,000. Is there anything fair about this? Then again, if the member is taxed on the property he has bought with his borrowed $4,000. Then he is liable to pay taxes on the $5,000, which does not belong to him, as the Association holds the mortgage on the property until it is paid off. The taxing of the mortgage means the taking away of the dividends due the members, and the reduction of dividend means the wiping out of the Associations. The men who deposit in Building Associations know that they are safe, and the depositors of the dead end their entire trust that the Association holds no more than $4,000, so reduce it to $3,000, and it will be no more than the Building Associations, as without such deposits there would be no money to loan depositors.

There are three Associations in Mayville, holding mortgages amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars each. The paper has been built on this borrowed money, spent to tax duplicate of the state, and why should these useful Associations be wiped out of existence by taxing the borrower and taxing the association? And on the 1st of April the Building Associations in Louisville will be asked to pay for protection.

BLAINE'S REMAINS.
Efforts to Remove Them to Augusta.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Acting under the terms of a resolution adopted by the legislature of Maine, Gov. Cleaves has written to Mrs. James G. Blaine, requesting permission for the state officials to remove the remains of his son, James G. Blaine, from the cemetery, in this city, to Augusta, the capital city of Maine, and his home throughout his long and prominent career.

At the time the resolution was adopted by the legislature, it was understood that the remains of Mr. Blaine would provide a monument to mark Mr. Blaine's final resting place in case the effort to secure the removal of the remains was successful. Mrs. Blaine returned Sunday from New York, and she had been with her son, the governor. Whatever may be the decision reached in the matter, it is understood that it will not indicate a change of residence for Mrs. Blaine. She will continue to make her home in Washington, but desires to find a smaller and more retired home than the big mansion she now occupies.

HARRY KERNELL.
New York, March 15.—Harry Kernal, the comedian, died at Bloomingdale asylum of softening of the brain. The end came to the actor at 3:10 Monday afternoon, and within ten minutes before his death the dying man was a picture of a god of perfect proportion. It was in his eyes that rested upon the face of his wife, known to the stage as Queenie Vasser.

He tried to speak to her, but the words his lips framed were never uttered, and he died with his head tilted back, his lips quivering, his glassy eyes came over his eyes, he became unconscious, and in a few moments his life went out. His death was without pain.

His body found in a tree.

SOUP BEND, Ind., March 15.—A. B. Clifford, an old and well-known resident of the town, was found dead of mental derangement, wandering from his home Saturday afternoon, and did not return at night. Search was made, and no trace of him was found until Sunday afternoon, when some Pollard boys found him drowned in McCarty's Creek, about a mile from town. His body was found floating in the water, his hands clasped around his neck, and his feet hanging over the bridge, which has no rail, and accidentally fell off.

Cleveland's Fences Commissioner.
WASHINGTON, D. C., March 15.—Western congressmen who approached the president to demand that he name a committee of pensioners to act as commissioners for the office of commissioner of pensions are authority for the statement that Mr. Cleveland informed them that he had about determined to appoint a committee to this position and that the same would be gone to Gen. Sherman, of New York, if his administration has been fulfilled and none of our rights realized.

The fight will be well kept making against the whisky power has been aided in bringing about this result, as we have lost considerable patronage by so doing and have gained nothing financially.

It was ARTEMUS WARD who volunteered all his relations for the war, taking good care to keep himself at a safe distance from shot and shell; and it is always the ARTEMUS WARD who urge the inexperienced editor to attack the "whisky power," and give him the most substantial support—with their mouths. It is the old story; the "whisky power" always plays its servants and agents in good sound money that will not buy whisky or buy bread and butter for our family.

We most confess that in this war, as a consequence of our own and the American voters could and should support a paper handsomely, but whether the faults lie with us or with them we shall not attempt to say. The services rendered have been fulfilled and none of our rights realized.

A NERVOUS WOMAN

She Discovers a Burglar at Work
in Her Room.

Capturing the Thief. She Holds Him
for the Police.

Mrs. Garland, of Cincinnati, in the Role of a Thief—catches The Burglar—The Woman's Description of the Thief as Seen by Her.

CINCINNATI, March 15.—About the nerviest burglar that has been seen in the city was captured by officers for some time was captured by officers early Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Little Garland, a married woman, had a desperate encounter with the burglar, and to her strength and courage, she is due the credit of saving her home. Garland, who says her husband is in Hamilton, sleeps in a single room on the first floor. About 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning she was awakened by a noise at the window and looking up she saw a man tear a lace curtain and spring out of bed and caught the fellow.

The burglar was but a pug in her grasp, and while she held him she pulled down the window.

Then threw the burglar upon the floor, and the woman, in her desperately-clad clothing, screaming "Police!" Officers who were near by hurried to the place, arrested the fellow and took him to the station house.

There he gave four or five different accounts of his many residences. He was charged with burglary.

Tuesday morning the fellow was arraigned. Here he gave his name as William Kennedy and his age as 28 years.

He parlayed everybody by saying that Mrs. Garland was his mistress, and the reason she raised a row was that she had another man in the room and she refused to let him in.

To satisfy himself, he says, he raised the window and climbed in the room to see if she was there. She came, confronted the fellow, and denied that she had ever seen him.

Kennedy insisted that his story was true, and it looked like a question of veracity between the two. Finally he was asked if he knew the woman's name.

Kennedy could not tell. Even then he would not weaken.

The police think he is one of the nerviest fellows the local department ever had, and this is the reason with a charge of burglary opposite his name. It is the general opinion that Kennedy is a "good one."

James G. Blaine, from the cemetery, in this city, to Augusta, the capital city of Maine, and his home throughout his long and prominent career.

At the time the resolution was adopted by the legislature, it was understood that the remains of Mr. Blaine would provide a monument to mark
Mr. Blaine's final resting place in case the effort to secure the removal of the remains was successful. Mrs. Blaine returned Sunday from New York, and she had been with her son, the governor.
Whatever may be the decision reached in the matter, it is understood that it will not indicate a change of residence for Mrs. Blaine. She will continue to make her home in Washington, but desires to find a smaller and more retired home than the big mansion she now occupies.

HARRY KERNELL.
New York, March 15.—Harry Kernal,
the comedian, died at Bloomingdale asylum of softening of the brain. The end came to the actor at 3:10 Monday afternoon, and within ten minutes before his death the dying man was a picture of a god of perfect proportion. It was in his eyes that rested upon the face of his wife, known to the stage as Queenie Vasser.

He tried to speak to her, but the words his lips framed were never uttered, and he died with his head tilted back, his lips quivering, his glassy eyes came over his eyes, he became unconscious, and in a few moments his life went out. His death was without pain.

His body found in a tree.

SOUP BEND, Ind., March 15.—A. B. Clifford, an old and well-known resident of the town, was found dead of mental derangement, wandering from his home Saturday afternoon, and did not return at night. Search was made, and no trace of him was found until Sunday afternoon, when some Pollard boys found him drowned in McCarty's Creek, about a mile from town. His body was found floating in the water, his hands clasped around his neck, and his feet hanging over the bridge, which has no rail,
and accidentally fell off.

success. At last, through the efforts of United States Marshal C. A. Stalnaker,
a crew of counterfeiters was arrested.

DIVORCES.

A Cincinnati Rabbi Issuing Them at Cheap Rates.

He Would Give a Couple Their Freedom for Eight Dollars.

Rabbi Simon I. Finkelstein Comes to Grief—Exile in a Polish-Jewish Congregation Over His Actions—Charged With "Practicing a Trick Game."

CINCINNATI March 15.—Simon I. Finkelstein, rabbi of a Jewish congregation in this city, was arrested Tuesday last on a charge of "practicing a trick game" opposite his home or the "plate."

His arrest developed a peculiar state of affairs in the church over which he presides. During the forenoon, a rabbi, a present member, was giving the name of Mrs. Lena Barter, alias on Chief Detach, and said she came to this city from Pittsburgh three weeks ago that in that place four months ago she had been married to Mike Barter, a man who was a well-known Jew. He left her, and she heard later through David Solomon, that he was in this city. She then came here and secured board with Mr. Solomon, but it seems that her husband had grown tired of her, and was an avowed Jew. A fortune teller told her of a widow of a saloon keeper who had a stand in their neighborhood. He told his wife that he had been to see Rabbi Finkelstein, and that for God's sake he had no time to be disturbed by such a woman. A few days ago, he visited and again called on his spiritual adviser and asked to be reunited to his old love, but was met with a demand, so he claims, for more for undoing what had been done.

The young wife thought something was wrong, and so did Chief Detach, and he at once demanded Detectives Wapstein and Moore to bring in the rabbi. When brought before the colonel Mr. Wapstein, he denied the charge that a portion of the story was true, but claimed that he did not realize he was granting absolute divorce. In his congregation it was customary whenever a couple was separated through the courts for the woman to have a special deacon from him, and he would confer the impression that the necessary legal steps had been taken by Barter. He stated that a paper had been given Barter giving proper information regarding the case, and that he had been returned to him and was destroyed. He was looked up, and the news of his arrest caused quite a number of his congregation to flock to the courthouse, and he was surrounded both for the prisoner, and marched away with him to their synagogue.

The chief enlightened the young couple in regard to any divorce granted by their spiritual adviser, and, as soon as he had done so, the woman, still a small girl and wife, and the husband began crying, the wife wailed, and they were soon clasped in each other's embrace. The colonel acted as mediator, and the reunited couple went away from police headquarters in the direction of their home. The trial in the police court Tuesday morning promises to be an interesting one, as it is probable that Rabbi Finkelstein has been exercising his spiritual powers with such skill that did not interfere any suspicion on the part of his congregation, the most of whom are not at all acquainted with the laws of this country.

CLOSED THEIR MOUTHS.

SECRETARY CARLISI (VIA FIRENZE) ON THE "LIBERTY OF THE PRESS" AND THE "NEWSPAPER LAW IN ITALY."

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Secretary Carlisi, who is the head of the office of the most convenient treasury office, has been in the habit of talking to all the newspaper correspondents in regard to financial matters. His orders are strict, and hereafter no one but the secretary will be allowed to talk about money matters. The secretary claims that he alone knows what is going on and he alone must give it to the press.

In regard to application for office it is just the reverse. The secretary has in his office a number of clerks from the appointment division to prepare lists of all applicants for positions and daily they are given to the press.

At the post office department Postmaster General Davis has never adopted another course. He has remained to secrecy and refuses to allow any information to be given out. Not only does he refuse to give the names of applicants, but he refuses to give out the date when commissions expire and often becomes means.

This is also different from the usual course at the post office department that it has caused a great deal of comment. Under Postmaster-General Wanamaker, the newspaper correspondents were allowed all the freedom and information required, but Mr. Davis is like all the officials new to Washington under this strange administration. They are not used to Washington and Washington ways and do not know how to act in Washington newspaper correspondence.

Private Secretary Thrasher, who was very new, is learning fast, but O'Brien, the official stenographer of the President, still thinks he is at Lakewood. The other day a Western reporter called on him at the White House after some routine information and O'Brien came to the phone, and in answer to the query replied: "I don't know whether I am privileged or authorized to answer and give the information," and he left the phone.

FOUND BY THE TRACK

By Railroad Men Was a Pink Cow Nian's pony.

CINCINNATI, March 15.—Some time between 5 and 6 o'clock yesterday morning an unknown man was run over by a R. & O. S. W. train at Cumminsville, between depot and Dotsworth avenue.

Himself body was found lying in a ditch alongside the south-bound track by Edward Mann, a black coach and stableman. Three railroad men who were going along at 4:30 o'clock, on their way to work.

Patrol 10 was summoned and the remains were removed to the morgue. On stripping the body, the men discovered on the left forearm the name "R. Dauberry" tattooed in red and blue India ink in Roman letters. Beneath the name were the two letters "S.C." in script, and beneath these a heart with the letter "A" in it. The tattooing was the only possible means of a subsequent identification of the man, as there is not the slightest mark on his clothing or elsewhere about his person to indicate where he came from. The large ring filled with a solder, gold, heating iron etc., found a few feet from where the body was picked up renders it quite likely that the man was a journeyman in tinker.

When the men were walking a road on the train to sell or was attack while walking along the track it is impossible to determine. The former would seem more probable, however, as in the latter case he would have surely been seen by the engineer of the train.

He is about five feet eight inches in height, has a sandy mustache and about a week's growth of beard. The hair is rather thin and of a light brown color. His clothes were those of a working man, consisting of a dark blue shirt he wore a blue-chequered shirt. The pants, coat and vest were of a dark material. In appearance he is about 55 years old.

A SLICK SWINDLER.

A Number of Victims,aken by a clever swindler.

DETROIT, March 15.—The treasurer of the First National Bank, an ex-swindler who was engaged in swindling people as Indians and Indians, his plan was to seal a printed circular stating that a valuable piece of furniture was missing, and to get certain house addresses to the party receiving the circular, but was awaiting the payment of the cut in dues usually from $3 to $5.

The circular had the name of the United States on the back, with "Swindler" on the front. All parties were directed to return the circular for filing purposes. A large number of people have been victimized by McArthur, and when arrested he had in his possession letters with remittances in them to persons in various parts of the country.
